WHO IS THIS PROGRAM FOR?

It takes a special person to work in criminal justice and confront the difficult issues facing our society today. Graduates of this degree program will be able to:

- 1) describe the evolving role of criminal justice systems and their relationship to critical societal issues,
- 2) employ a variety of means and media to communicate with both public and private stakeholders appropriately and effectively and
- 3) evaluate and apply appropriate management and leadership philosophies and approaches to practice in various criminal justice contexts.

SAMPLE COURSES

Applied Criminal Investigation and Criminalistics (ENF239)

Emphasis on the investigation of specific crimes including, but not limited to, homicide, sexual assault, aggravated assault, robbery, burglary, theft, auto theft and arson. Students will be required to investigate a "mock" crime scene, collect and analyze evidence obtained and present their investigation in a "moot" court.

Criminology (ENF293)

This course provides an introduction to the subject of criminology. Criminology is the study of both criminal behavior and crime itself, and as such, is one of the foundational courses for criminal justice. It explores the different schools of criminological thought, the different eras of criminology research and the theories proposed for crime and criminal motivation. Additionally, there is an emphasis on the development of the history of criminology as the basis for our justice system today.
